Prospects of the qualifying program for postgraduate studies

Awareness

Self awareness aims to improve qualifications, skills, and personal and mental abilities. Awareness represents the mental state that characterizes human beings in their logical reasoning and self awareness. It is the openness of the person to the world and to others, the awareness of something involves knowing and working with this knowledge. Awareness is what a person has of ideas, perspectives and concepts about life and nature around him. It also represents the perception of the relationship between the personal entity and its natural environment. Hence, self-awareness is the starting point to self-development. We should be committed to developing the concept of awareness, also developing self awareness is not easy but not impossible.
